Korea Military Regime Bans All Political Parties

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The new military regime expanded its program of totalitarian controls Monday with a ban on all South Korean political parties and an order for prebroadcast checks on the Voice of America.

At the same time, the Cabinet of Prime Minister Chang Do-yung opened formal diplomatic contacts with the United States. Foreign Minister Kim Hong-il, a retired general, exchanged views for an hour with U.S. Charge d'Affaires Marshal Green.

What they said was not disclosed, but Green is believed to have expressed U.S. hopes for early restoration of civilian government in Korea, while Kim doubtless tried to build up relations with the United States. Funds from Washington have been South Korea's major bastion against economic collapse since the Republic of Korea was founded in 1948.

The meeting at Green's residence was the first such formal exchange between the new regime and Green. Only a week ago he issued a statement backing the old elected government against the coup stated by Chang and other generals, who said they acted to wipe out corruption, install efficient government and fight Communist subversion.

Reports of dissension in Chang's 30-member Supreme Council of colonels and generals circulated in Seoul, but little official information filtered through the most right press and radio controls in South Korea's history.

The reports said a rift developed because marines and paratroop commanders refused to move their units out of Seoul, using this show of force to back their bid for more representation in the new military government composed almost entirely of army men.

Kozlov, Top Aide Of Khrushchev, Seriously Ill

LONDON (AP) — Frol R. Kozlov, secretary of the Soviet Communist party Central Committee and close colleague of Premier Khrushchev, is very ill with heart trouble, the London Daily Telegraph reported Monday night.

It said illness has accounted for Kozlov's failure to appear in public in Moscow for more than a month. He was last seen publicly at an April 13 Red Square reception in Moscow for Maj. Yuri Gagarin, the Soviet astronaut.

Kozlov, 53, frequently has been mentioned by Western observers as a likely future prospect for Soviet premier.

He went to the United States in 1959 to make preparations for Khrushchev's American visit in the fall of that year.

The Telegraph based its account on a report by David Floyd, its special correspondent on Soviet affairs.

"The illness will aggravate the problem of leadership with which the Russian regime is confronted," Floyd noted. "There is a serious shortage of capable men with strong personalities in the upper reaches of the Russian system."

Jet Blast Powerful

PARIS (AP) — The jet blast from a Boeing 707 hurtled a parked pickup truck into the fuselage of a parked French Caravelle just getting ready to receive passengers Monday at Orly Field. The only casualty was a shaken-up hostess. The Caravelle had a six-foot gash cut in its side.

APPOINTED — The appointment of Gen. Curtis E. LeMay (above) as the next Air Force chief of staff was announced yesterday by the White House. LeMay, now vice chief of staff, will replace Gen. Thomas D. White whose retirement becomes effective June 30. (Story at bottom of page).

Senate Shuns Racial Rider To School Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rejecting assertions that the Alabama race riots proved the need for a civil rights rider, the Senate Monday defeated an anti-segregation amendment to the administration's $2.5 billion school aid bill.

The roll call vote to table—and therefore kill — the amendment was 61 to 25. Seven Republicans joined 54 Democrats in voting to scuttle the rider. Four Democrats voted with 21 Republicans to keep it alive.

The vote was a victory for administration supporters who are fighting to keep the measure free of all amendments that might endanger approval of the entire bill. They have beaten down six attempts to alter the bill.

Actually, the Senate refused even to consider officially the anti-segregation rider. It approved a motion by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., to table the amendment. This might have been more palatable to civil rights advocates than rejection of the amendment itself.

The Senate acted after Sen. Prescott Bush, R-Conn., sponsor of the amendment, said the week-end violence in Montgomery, Ala., showed the rider was needed.

He said the government should not be placed in the position of "paying a bonus for defiance" of the Supreme Court's desegregation ruling.

His amendment would have required federal officials to deny school aid funds to states which were not moving toward full compliance with court desegregation orders.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) wired senators that the Alabama attacks on the "freedom riders" proved that federal money should be denied to southern states.

Kennedy Names LeMay Air Force Chief Of Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Blunt-spoken, hard-driving Gen. Curtis E. LeMay—the man credited with building this country's powerful nuclear bomber force—was picked by President Kennedy Monday to command the Air Force.

Kennedy named the pilot-general to a two-year term as Air Force chief of staff. Assuming Senate confirmation, LeMay, 54, will succeed Gen. Thomas D. White, probably on June 30. White is retiring.

At the same time, the President chose Gen. Frederick H. Smith Jr., now Air Force chief in Europe, to move in behind LeMay as vice chief of staff. LeMay has been the Air Force's second in command for four years.

LeMay, a decorated combat flier rarely seen without a big black cigar in his mouth, will take over at a time when the Joint

Tribunal Rejects Plan For Yielding Of Voting Power

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Supreme Court ruled Monday E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. must get rid of its vast stockholdings in General Motors Corp.—not merely yield the right to vote it.

Dividing four to three, the court decreed Du Pont must sell its 23 per cent stock interest in GM—63 million shares—within 10 years. At current quotations, Du Pont's stake in GM is just under $3 billion.

The great GM holdings by Du Pont were held earlier to be in violation of the antitrust laws and the question of what to do about it has been before the courts for years. Du Pont is a giant in the industrial chemical field while GM dominates the automotive market with profitable subsidiaries in such things as diesel engines and home appliances.

Stocks Of Both Drop

The decision — the most far-reaching of its kind ever delivered—brought sharp drops in the stocks of both companies on the New York Stock Exchange. Closing at 214½, Du Pont was off 5½ from Friday's close. At 46½, GM was down 2½—representing a paper loss of about $135 million on Du Pont's 63 million GM shares.

The ruling brought from Crawford H. Greenwalt, Du Pont president, a request that Congress act speedily to ease the tax burden which he said will result from sale of GM stock by Du Pont. He estimated that under present law Du Pont's individual stockholders might have to pay as much as $1 billion in taxes on the proceeds of the GM stock sales which would be taxable as ordinary income.

Greenwalt said also that the forced sale would inflict further economic hardship on GM's 800,000 stockholders and Du Pont's more than 200,000-plus by depressing the market value of both stocks.

Legislation noted

Greenwalt noted that legislation to provide special tax treatment of involuntary stock distributions such as the one involved in this case won committee approval in House and Senate last year but reached neither floor.

Rep. J. Arthur Younger, R-Calif., at this session but there has been no action on it. And Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee said Monday his group has no legislation of this nature scheduled for consideration and has a heavy hearing program which will carry well into the summer.

In its ruling, the Supreme Court rejected a plan by Walter J. La Bay of U.S. District Court in Chicago that Du Pont's surrender of its voting power in GM would be sufficient to terminate the antitrust law violation.

Laotian Government Appeals To Geneva

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — The royal Laotian government appealed to the Geneva conference to help carry out a cease-fire after peace talks broke down Monday at the rebel held village of Naomons.

Government delegates to the Naomons meeting behind rebel lines reported that the Communist Pathet Lao negotiators Monday virtually told them the May 3 cease-fire in Laos counted for nothing.

Stranded GI Given Lift By Johnson

KINDLEY AIR FORCE BASE, Bermuda (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson landed here Monday night after a 13½ hour jet flight from Athens at the end of his Far Eastern tour.

Johnson's plane landed at 6:40 p.m. EDT. The trip included stops at Wheelus Air Force Base, Libya, and Lages Field, the Azores, for refueling.

The vice president stopped to shake hands with American airmen in Libya and gave a stranded GI a ride to Bermuda from the Azores in the press plane accompanying him. The soldier was Richard Bennett, 25, of Boston, Mass.

Johnson was welcomed in Bermuda by Gov. Sir Julian Gascoigne. He said he would spend the time before his departure Tuesday morning working on his reports to President Kennedy.

The report will detail the vice president's two-week, 29,000 mile tour of Asian capitals.

FBI Arrests Four In Bus Burning Case

Fire Bomb Wrecked Vehicle, Injured 'Freedom Riders'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government withdrew its U.S. marshals from the streets of tense, race-torn Montgomery, Ala., Monday but kept them on the edge of the city ready for action.

The Justice Department announced also the first FBI arrests in connection with violence against the "freedom riders." Four men were taken into custody at Anniston on charges in connection with the burning of a "freedom riders" bus several days before the mob outbreak in Montgomery.

Both of these developments came shortly after the Alabama congressional delegation had asked withdrawal of all U.S. marshals from the state. Others in Congress praised dispatch of the federal officers.

The Justice Department announced the withdrawal of the marshals to Maxwell Air Force Base, minutes away from the center of Montgomery.

The withdrawal was made, a spokesman for the department said, because the Alabama National Guard appeared to have the situation in the city under control.

Bus Fire—Bombed

The four men arrested at Anniston were charged with throwing a fire bomb into a bus carrying Negro and white "freedom riders."

This attack occurred near Anniston, in the northern part of Alabama, on May 14 and was the first in a series of violent incidents climaxed by last Saturday's rioting at Montgomery in central-south Alabama.

The bomb destroyed the bus and injured some passengers. Later, a second group of "freedom riders" boarded a bus and attempted to travel through Alabama. They were severely beaten by a mob in Montgomery last Saturday morning.

Atty. Gen. Kennedy, announced the Anniston arrests after briefing President Kennedy, his brother, on the Alabama crisis late Monday.

The four men, all charged with damaging a bus traveling in interstate commerce, are Robert Dale Couch, 19, unemployed; Jerry Ronald Eason, 22, employed in a flower shop; Frank B. Johnson, 43, a maintenance man; and Daleford Leonard Roberts, 42, a cab driver.

No Plans To Use U.S. Troops

Atty. Gen. Kennedy, earlier Monday, told newsmen that the federal government has "no plans to send federal troops" to Alabama at the present time. But a high government source said they could be used if needed.

Sen. Lister Hill, D-Ala., made public the appeal which said Gov. John Patterson of Alabama "has assured us that law and order will be enforced and maintained."

Patterson declared martial law and called out the National Guard after a mob of white people advanced Sunday night on a Montgomery church crowded with Negroes.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Senate Democratic leader, said the mauling of the bus riders in Montgomery Saturday "makes us as a nation hang our heads in shame."

He told the Senate, "I hope the state's threat to interfere with these marshals will not materialize. But if it does, there is no question which authority will and must prevail, the federal government's."

Discuss Prisoner-Tractor Swap

Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower (left) discusses Fidel Castro's prisoners-for-tractors deal at a Washington news conference yesterday. With him are Walter Reuther, United Auto Workers head, and Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, all members of a private committee which is trying to raise funds for purchase of tractors to be swapped for prisoners held by the Castro government. The committee announced acceptance of the Castro deal provided the Cuban prime minister meets certain conditions. (AP Photofax)

Allegheny Corp. Struggle Won By Murchisons

NEW YORK (AP) — The insurgent Murchison brothers won their proxy fight for control of the giant Allegheny Corp. by between three-quarters of a million and a million stockholder votes, reliable sources said Monday.

The official result will be announced Tuesday in Baltimore.

In Dallas, Tex., John D. Murchison, leader in the struggle to oust Allan P. Kirby, Allegheny chairman, said he "would not deny" the report of victory but neither would he make a statement claiming it.

But more significant, Murchison said his slate of directors will assemble in New York on Wednesday, presumably formally to elect new officers and otherwise take over.

Even under Murchison control, Kirby, with a $300-million fortune built on a Woolworth 5-and-10 cent store inheritance, still will remain Allegheny's biggest single stockholder.

There were reports that Kirby, a one-time business ally of John's father, oilman and investor Clint W. Murchison Sr., will be offered a seat on the reorganized board of directors. Kirby was expected to turn it down.

The outcome had been a foregone conclusion since the thrice-recessed annual meeting of the corporation convened May 1 in Baltimore—and even before that in some quarters.

However, the count of proxies cast in the epic financial struggle was completed only over the weekend. It remains for the neutral Corporation Trust Co., in charge of the count, to certify the tally.

Allegheny oversees a $6.7-billion railroad and investment company empire built around control of the $2.5-billion New York Central Railroad and Investors Diversified Services, a $3.7-billion Minneapolis-based investment company complex.

John, 39, and Clint W. Jr., 37, operate as Murchison Brothers, a partnership set up by their father.

They fell out with Kirby over management of IDS, which the brothers controlled from 1953 to 1960. Kirby ousted them from the IDS board last September.

The proxy fight followed.

Citizens' Committee Begins Negotiating For Cuban Captives

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Tractors-for-Freedom Committee was organized Monday and began negotiating with Prime Minister Fidel Castro for the release of more than 1,200 prisoners captured in last month's Cuban invasion.

The private group went ahead in the face of some sharp protests in Congress.

Considerable uncertainty developed over Castro's offer to release the prisoners in return for 500 American-made tractors, however, when the Cuban radio quoted Castro as saying the United States was taking an insulting attitude toward his offer to release the captives in return for farm machinery.

He threatened to call the deal off and mete out summary punishments to the captives.

Nevertheless, the citizens group set out to raise the millions needed to buy 500 tractors and announced it was telegraphing three conditions to Castro, as follows:

1. Castro will allow a small group of Americans to go to Havana to work out details, including the type of tractors.
2. Castro will supply a list of prisoners to be freed.
3. Castro promises to release the prisoners as tractors arrive.

Walter P. Reuther, head of the United Auto Workers Union and chairman of the citizens' committee, announced the group was cabling Castro it would go ahead with the deal if the conditions were accepted.

Cries of "Communist blackmail" came from Republican Sens. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Homer E. Capehart of Indiana.

Capehart said if this country "yields to Castros' blackmail we'll be the laughing stock of the world." He said that instead of making a deal with Castro "I'd have gone to war."

Goldwater told the Senate the United States could not abandon moral responsibility to the captured Cubans but said: "How can we stand up to Castro when he attempts to blackmail us by offering 1,000 lives for 500 tractors and by throwing in what he calls 'the Fascist priests' for free?"

In the House Rep. August E. Johansen, R-Mich., said he was appalled at the apparent eagerness to "comply with the ransom terms laid down by Communist stooge Fidel Castro."

Johansen asked in a statement, "By what standards of responsible governmental leadership is (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Presbyterians Launch Church Reunion Drive

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Presbyterians launched Monday an historic bid for reunion among American Protestant churches.

In a dramatic session, the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church authorized talks seeking "the establishment of a united church, truly catholic, truly reformed and truly evangelical."

Opposition melted away on a tide of fervent debate and solemn prayer.

"We are looking toward a union as broad and deep as God may lead us to achieve," said the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake of Philadelphia, chief administrator of the 3½-million-member United Presbyterian denomination.

The action calls for negotiating on unification with the Episcopal Church, the Methodist Church and the United Church of Christ. The four groups have a total of more than 18 million members.

Other interested denominations will be invited to participate, including southern Presbyterians.

Doctors Baffled By Case Of Boy Allergic To Light

LONDON (AP) — Freddie McIntosh, 8, is a boy who must live in the shadows. He is allergic to light.

Sunshine brought out on him a mass of blisters last spring and since then, his father William said Monday, Freddie has worn a white hood with slits for his eyes.

"I am hopelessly looking forward to my meeting with Chairman Khrushchev in Vienna," Kennedy told the 12 Russian writers and editors during a 15-minute White House chat. His remarks were reported in a memo issued later.

"From this meeting there is the possibility of attaining a better understanding between myself and Chairman Khrushchev and also a better understanding between the two countries," Kennedy said.

U.S. Marshals Withdrawn From Streets

Montgomery Tense, Quiet; Bomb Threats Fail To Materialize

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Federal authorities pulled U.S. marshals off patrol duty in riot-stricken Montgomery Monday and left battle-trained National Guardsmen to keep order.

The Justice Department announced in Washington that 200 more U.S. marshals were ordered sent here, but Deputy Atty. Gen. Byron R. (Whizzer) White, who is directing their activities, said they will serve merely as replacements for 200 others being sent home.

At the same time, federal officials announced the first arrests in the bloody outbreaks of racial violence in Alabama which began eight days ago.

The Justice Department said four men were picked up by the FBI on charges of setting fire to a Greyhound bus at Anniston May 14. The bus was carrying "freedom riders" on a test of southern racial barriers.

Later that day another racially mixed group of segregation challengers was attacked by a mob in Birmingham. Then in Montgomery last weekend still another "freedom riding" group ran into a wild two-day uprising.

Bomb Threats Made

Montgomery lay under the calm of an uneasy quiet Monday except for a rash of bomb threats which failed to materialize—one of them at the Greyhound bus terminal where the rioting broke out Saturday. Police and firemen found no explosives.

Similar telephone threats prompted a search of two white schools and a downtown radio station, but they were false alarms.

An anonymous caller also threatened violence at the Trailways bus station lunch counter if Negroes are served there. The caller told Mrs. Walter Evans, wife of the cafe manager, "Either close the lunchroom or don't serve any Negroes. The first one to serve a Negro will get his brains busted out."

Steel-helmeted National Guard troops, 800 strong, and civilian police patrolled the streets in this historic birthplace of the Confederacy.

The soldiers were mobilized by an emergency martial law proclamation issued by Gov. John Patterson Sunday night at the height of a new outbreak of racial violence at a Negro church.

Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy in Washington had told newsmen in announcing the order to send more marshals in: "Obviously we're not satisfied with the situation or we wouldn't be sending more in."

48 Hours Without Sleep

Kennedy said some of the federal officers rushed here Saturday night and Sunday had been without sleep for 48 hours. Further, he said, Alabama is a large state and the department wanted to make sure enough marshals were here.

Negro leaders, including the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., scheduled a conference to discuss the future of the "freedom riders" who were met here Saturday by a frenzied white mob.

The bus riders, whose visit was part of a test of Southern bus station segregation barriers, remained secluded in private homes.

State authorities still held contempt of court citations against the group under a state court injunction which sought to prevent them from coming here from Birmingham.

Although none had been arrested, Circuit Judge Walter B. Jones, who issued the injunction last Friday, set a hearing for 10 a.m. Tuesday on the contempt charges against the riders.

Russian Arrested As Spy In Bangkok

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — A Russian national was arrested Monday for alleged subversive activities in what police sources said could signal the crack down on a spy ring believed to have operated for years in Bangkok, headquarters for the SEATO anti-Communist alliance.

The Russian was identified by police as Thomas Bulgakov, 34. He was seized in his home in Bangkok and taken to the criminal investigation bureau headquarters.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nilsa Estremera, 5, was killed Monday when she bounced too hard on a bed mattress and toppled through a bedroom window to an apartment yard six floors below, police reported.

U.S., Russ Advance Parties In Vienna

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—President Kennedy's press secretary Pierre Salinger Monday night arrived by air to work out details of Kennedy's meeting with Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Salinger told newsmen he hopes to meet with the Soviet advance party Tuesday after preliminary discussions with Austrian officials.

The Soviet advance party, headed by Khrushchev's security chief, Marshal M. V. Zakharov, arrived earlier in the day.

Salinger headed a 39-member delegation in a plane piloted by Kennedy's personal pilot, Col. Godfrey McHugh.

In Salinger's party were Kenneth O'Donnell, special assistant to the President in charge of appointment schedules, and James Rowley, chief of the White House Secret Service.

Replying to questions, Salinger said he hoped for a friendly meeting between Kennedy and Khrushchev.

He said the two men met before at a session of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee in Washington, but it was merely a hand-shaking meeting.

Salinger said he hoped to complete the arrangements for the meeting by Wednesday and to return to Washington the same day.

Garcia Urges Red Crackdown

MANILA (AP)—President Carlos P. Garcia of the Philippines called on the United States Monday to stand firm against Communist expansion in Asia "before it's too late."

"The question today is whether to let the Russians and their satellites overrun Asia or keep the area in the democratic camp," he said. "If the answer is the former, then give up the fight and let the Communists gobble it up."

"But if the idea is to keep it for the democracies, then do something now."

Garcia, 64, emphasized that the United States "should put out the fires now, before they get too large." He was referring to Communist aggression in Laos and South Viet Nam.

The president told The Associated Press in an interview he is still prepared to send Filipino forces into Laos.

"If it's in accord of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization, we will do our part," he said.

Garcia, in making known his concern for a strong U.S. stand in Southeast Asia, saw Red China as the major threat.

Kunkel Takes Seat As Pa. Congressman

WASHINGTON (AP)—John C. Kunkel, 62, elected in a special election last Tuesday, took the oath of office Monday as congressman from Pennsylvania's 16th District.

Succeeding the late Walter M. Mumma, Kunkel brings Pennsylvania's congressional delegation once again to its full strength of 30 members. He also gives the Republicans a 16-14 edge over Democrats in the Keystone State delegation. Mumma also was a Republican.

Typhoid Raging In Greece Didn't Stop Eichmann

JERUSALEM (AP)—Adolf Eichmann ordered Greek Jews shipped off to the Auschwitz gas chambers despite a wartime typhoid epidemic raging in Greece, documents submitted at the former Gestapo officer's trial showed Monday.

"Total and immediate deportation," was Eichmann's answer to a subordinate's warning about the epidemic.

Eichmann, charged with helping organize the murder of six million European Jews, sat in his glass-enclosed prisoner's cage busily scribbling notes. He looked his usual impassive self, despite an announcement he is suffering from nervous tension.

Israeli police said irregular heartbeats had been observed by Eichmann's doctors on two occasions since the trial before an Israeli court began.

Evidence that Eichmann ignored the typhoid warning was contained in an affidavit taken from Dieter Wisliceny, a colleague of Eichmann hanged in 1947 for war crimes.

Hunger also had emaciated the Greek Jews to a point that when they arrived in Auschwitz for life-or-death selection by Gestapo officers, "from 80 to 90 per cent went immediately to their deaths," another prosecution document showed.

An Auschwitz survivor, Itzhak Nehama, told the court he and his wife were rounded up in a typhoid-stricken Salonika and shipped off to the east in a transport of 2,700.

Nehama also recalled public beatings of Salonika Jews by the Nazis in the presence of clapping German girls.

He survived because he was taken to a German armaments factory. His wife, his parents and his four sisters died in Auschwitz.

Batt Takes Oath

WASHINGTON (AP)—William L. Batt Jr. Monday was sworn in by Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges as head of the new Area Redevelopment Administration.

Batt, formerly secretary of Labor and Industry for the State of Pennsylvania, will direct the Kennedy administration's new program for channeling federal aid to areas of chronic and substantial unemployment.

Philippines Menaced

TOKYO (AP)—Typhoon Betty churned Monday night toward the Philippine Islands at 9 miles an hour. Carrying 75 m.p.h. center winds, the typhoon was spotted by U.S. 5th Air Force weathermen 834 miles east-southeast of Manila at 9 p.m.

Citizen's Committee

Capehart also cited the Logan Act, which bars negotiations between a private citizen and a foreign government. But Reuther said the committee had checked with government officials and "we have gotten a green light to go ahead without any complications."

Reuther said he himself would go with the mission to Havana to discuss technical details if Castro agrees. The union leader said the Cuban leader wanted heavy tractors of a type that cost up to $34,000 each. This would run to $17 million if 500 are supplied.

Reuther said the committee indicated it felt that smaller tractors would be more practical for Cuban farmers. They also would be cheaper.

Eleanor Roosevelt was named honorary chairman of the group. Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, educator and brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, was appointed cochairman with Reuther.

As treasurer the group selected Joseph M. Dodge, Detroit banker and former Budget Bureau director in the Eisenhower administration.

Youth Who Slew Mother Sent To Mental Hospital

HAGERSTOWN (AP)—An 18-year-old Hagerstown youth indicted in the knife-slaying of his mother was ordered confined to a state mental hospital Monday by Circuit Judge D. K. McLaughlin.

The action came in Washington County Circuit Court after Judge McLaughlin received a letter from Dr. Jacob Morgenstern, superintendent of the Clifton Perkins State Hospital at Jessup.

Dr. Morgenstern said the youth, John J. Davis II, was suffering from psychiatric illnesses. Davis had been indicted on charges of murdering his mother, Mrs. Wanetta M. Davis, 36, last Feb. 22.

Police said Davis told them his mind "went blank" because of the way his mother had nagged him about the way he did his homework.

Davis has been undergoing mental tests since March.

Dr. Morgenstern said Davis was insane at the time of the crime and "is at present unable to understand the nature and extent of the charges against him or to cooperate with his defense."

Defense attorneys pleaded innocent by reason of insanity at Davis' arraignment in March. The judge's order left the State Department of Mental Hygiene to determine which hospital will treat Davis. Dr. Morgenstern advised Davis "requires an extended period of hospitalization and intensive treatment."

Further action against Davis has been stayed pending the outcome of his treatment.

Sen. Butler Calls Dulles Airport In Virginia 'Joke'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dulles International Airport in Virginia was described Monday by Sen. John Marshall Butler, R-Md., as "a most unamusing and too expensive joke on the American taxpayer."

"Dulles is a joke," Butler said, "when you consider its ever rising cost and its never approaching completion date."

He said the cost has risen from an original estimate of $85 million to $105 million. And then last Wednesday, "the head of the Federal Aviation Agency stated that he would probably have to ask Congress for $6 million more to construct hangars," Butler said.

"Why? Because in conversations with commercial line operators about putting up their own hangars, the FAA head revealed that the only reaction he had received is a 'blank look.'"

Butler said he will have this in mind when Congress is approached for the extra $6 million.

"If this senator has anything to say about it, the commercial airlines will receive a blanker look than they can give," he added.

Wagon Driver Over Half-Way To Destination

EASTON, Md. (AP)—Warren C. Holden, driving his creaking 75-year-old Conestoga wagon, arrived at Easton Monday, had lunch at a diner on U. S. 50, then whipped the reins and headed south again.

The 58-year-old Holden, a retired tree surgeon, suffered a stroke last year and is making the 200-mile trip from his home in Pottstown, Pa., to Berlin, Md., to prove he has recovered and is in good health.

He passed the mid-point in his jaunt, started eight days ago, and was expected to spend the night at Trappe, seven miles farther along.

Drawing the wagon are two horses, Rosie and Marjorie. They have averaged about 20 miles a day.

Holden expects to reach Berlin Thursday or Friday, and may continue on from there to Pocomoke City.

BALTIMORE (AP) — The first results of a state investigation of referendum petitions on bills establishing the Baltimore Municipal Court and regulating Maryland's savings and loan industry were to be turned over Tuesday to State's Attorney Saul A. Harris of Baltimore.

Deputy Atty. Gen. Joseph S. Kaufman said an investigator from his office was to confer with Harris and his assistant, John W. Sause.

Kaufman would not name the investigator or reveal the results of the investigation.

The probe began last week after Harris and Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan said the petitions may be in violation of the state's corrupt Practices Act.

Harris said he could find no statement on the petitions giving the sponsorship for the signature drives, which are intended to stay the effective date of the new laws until after the 1962 general election.

Passed by the 1961 General Assembly, the bills are scheduled to become effective June 1.

The threat of referenda on the bills prompted the investigations and an announcement by Gov. Tawes that he would call a special session of the assembly to re-pass them as emergency measures if the referenda movements succeed.

The Municipal Court replaces Baltimore's existing police and magistrates courts. The savings and loan act, commonly referred to as the Case Bill, after attorney Richard Case whose study commission drafted it, imposes strict regulations on the state's $1.5 billion savings and loan industry.

The prospect of a special session and the investigations brought sharp criticism of Harris from Northwest Baltimore Democratic leader James H. (Jack) Pollack.

His statement was disputed during the weekend by Sen. John Clarence North, D-Talbot, who fought for passage of the savings and loan bill last session.

But Pollack claimed Sunday that North "favors nullifying the constitutional rights of citizens to petition for a referendum" on laws passed by the legislature.

Finan and others, including some Baltimore County delegates, have said the intent of referendum laws is being abused. Signature drives also are under way on bills creating Maryland's new 8th congressional district, tightening eligibility requirements for unemployment compensation benefits and two local laws.

A 1915 provision in the state constitution requires 10,000 signatures to force a law to Statewide vote.

Mallard Duck Flees Unusual Nest In Tree

CHESTERTOWN, Md. (AP) — Marilyn the mallard must have run out of patience. She's flown her unusual coop in a big oak tree.

Left high, dry and unhatched were 15 duck eggs.

Mother Marilyn's desertion was discovered Monday by Dr. Joseph Linduska, director of Remington Farms, a wildlife research preserve on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Marilyn's disappearance was as much a mystery to the game experts as her choice of a nest. This was the third spring she had picked a tree to leave a clutch of eggs. They were destroyed by wild animals.

This time, the rooting for success was prompted by the passage of four weeks with the eggs intact.

But when Linduska checked the nest after a week-end absence, Marilyn was gone.

"The eggs are cold," he said sadly. "I broke open a couple and they are starting to decay."

Linduska had no idea what happened to Marilyn. "They usually sit tight on a nest," he said.

If Marilyn returns next year, Linduska promised to help her out. "I'll put the eggs in an incubator."

What caused the excitement over Marilyn was the fact that mallards are supposed to nest on or close to water. Little ducks learn to swim before flying.

Marilyn's latest deserted nest was 14 feet above ground.

Lionel Purchases Hagerstown Firm

NEW YORK (AP)—Lionel Corp. Monday announced the purchase of the Porter Chemical Co. of Hagerstown, Md., for an undisclosed price.

Porter, a 46-year-old firm, manufactures science toys and games. It has sales of about $3 million annually.

J. D. Medaris, Lionel chairman, said the purchase will enhance the per share earnings of Lionel stockholders and will complement the present Lionel line of toys and science toys.

Medaris said no changes were contemplated in Porter's factory site, personnel or marketing policies.

Suspends Sentence

NEW YORK (UPI)—Elizabeth Just, 20, was given a three-day suspended jail sentence Monday for refusing to take shelter in a Civil Defense air raid drill here April 28. Miss Just, member of a group protesting nuclear armament, already had spent three days in the Women's House of Detention. Her attorney asked Magistrate Irving Schreckling for leniency because Miss Just "is not malicious, wicked or maladjusted."

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 64-year-old Carroll County man died Sunday after falling into Chesapeake from a pier in Anne Arundel County.

The victim, Carvel Horton of Westminster, fell into the water from a pier at the Rose Haven Yacht Club near North Beach.

TOWSON, Md. (AP)—The Commission on Government Efficiency and Economy said today it was impossible to determine from Baltimore County's operating and capital budgets the total funds provided for local service programs.

The commission reported that general and special fund spending in the county has increased $11.5 million since 1959. During the same period, the study commission said, allocations for department operations, dept. service, employees' retirement and pay-as-you-go capital outlays increased nearly $15 million.

Rees' Transfer To Va. For Trial Expected Soon

BALTIMORE (AP) — Melvin Davis Rees Jr., convicted kidnap slayer of an Apple Grove, Va., housewife and her small daughter probably will leave for Virginia Wednesday to face trial for the deaths of the other two members of the Carroll V. Jackson family.

U. S. Marshall Gerald Bracken said he expected to receive official notice for the move by mid-week. A writ of habeas corpus was signed last week by a Virginia judge ordering the Hyattsville, Md., musician to appear at the Spotsylvania, Va., courthouse by 2:30 p. m. Friday.

Rees was convicted in U. S. District Court here of kidnapping Mrs. Mildred Jackson and her 5-year-old daughter Susan and transporting them across state lines for the purpose of killing them. U. S. Chief District Judge Roszel C. Thomsen sentenced him to life imprisonment.

Virginia authorities now want to try him for the slaying of Jackson and another daughter, Janet, 1 1/2. The family disappeared Jan. 11, 1959 while driving home after a visit to relatives.

Power Lineman Electrocuted

SALISBURY (AP)—A lineman for the Eastern Shore Public Service Co. was electrocuted near here Monday while working on a high tension line.

Officials at the firm said William T. Foskey, 32, a journeyman lineman from Fruitland, Md., was working with a crew of men on lines near the J. I. Wells Cressote Co., about 10 miles West of here when he apparently came in contact with a 12,000 volt power line.

Fellow workmen heard him scream, a company spokesman said, and found him hanging slumped in his safety belt at the top of a pole. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Salisbury's Peninsula General Hospital.

Officials said a full investigation of the accident was being conducted.

Foskey is survived by his wife and two children.

Wife Preservers

Dust furniture easily by donning a pair of clean cotton gloves, then rubbing your hands over pieces.

Both vulnerable. North-South have a 60 part score. South deals.

Against the game contract of two hearts West opened the king of diamonds. South ruffed the continuation and led a low heart to dummy's eight. Had East taken this trick declarer would have been home. A diamond continuation could be ruffed in dummy and later diamond forces would net the defense just three hearts and two diamonds. If East continues trump, declarer scores three hearts, four clubs and a spade.

But East allowed the eight of hearts to hold. Impressed with his own strength, declarer now tried the spade finesse losing to West's king. On the club return, South won and led a heart. The rude awakening came when West showed out. East cashed his two high trumps and continued with a diamond. This took declarer's last trump and, when East got in with his surviving trump, the defense cashed sufficient diamond tricks to defeat the contract.

In view of vulnerability, West could not safely overcall the opening heart bid and East could hardly risk a call at the level of three. It may be suggested that West might bid three diamonds after the opposition had reached game, but if partner were short in diamonds this could lead to a great disaster. A shaded take-out double originally, by West, is a possible solution to the problem since it permits East to enter the auction at a relative.

South was well on his way to score an easy game when East snatched it from his grasp by a rather unusual holdup play in trumps.

Black smooth leather pumps with needle pointed toes and pencil slim high heels are the spring preference of women, says a survey by students at New York University's School of Retailing. The survey also showed that navy blue is less popular than it was and that bone, lavender and browns were more important. Patent leather continues to be worn, along with shoes of contrasting textures. Many of these have self trims. Others are perforated.

City Asked To Increase Water Supply

The Cresaptown Civic Improvement Association, representatives of labor, Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, Cumberland Industrial Promotion Corporation, Chamber of Commerce and those interested in land development urged the Mayor and Council yesterday morning, to increase the water supply to Cresaptown.

Assurance of such a move, according to Attorney William Walsh who said he was representing the Allegany Land Company, would allow the Cresaptown association to supply water to certain developments on Route 220 toward Keyser to meet urgent housing needs of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory.

Walsh said the association supplies water to Cresaptown and has authority to supply it to areas outside of that community. It has agreed to supply water to the housing developments if the City of Cumberland will make water available to the association.

In a written proposal to council, the association cited figures to show that it can expect a total of 1,050 homes in the period from 1961 to 1964 with a maximum water requirement at the end of that period of 315,000 gallons a day.

Walsh said another development company is also interested in the Route 220 area and the proposal includes the needs of both.

If the area is to be developed, he said, work must begin at once. But the water problem has to be solved first, he added.

Asked by Finance Commissioner Lucile Roeder who is anticipating that many homes, Walsh said the estimate was compiled by Dr. R. W. Lowstutter, supervisor of technical personnel at ABL.

Lowstutter said the estimate of 250 in 1961 and 400 more homes in 1962 is an estimate of what the area would draw and Cresaptown should get about 400 of these.

It would mark the first time such housing—modern with modern financing—would be available in the area, Lowstutter said, and many people who at present are not interested in a home will find that they are once the development is underway.

An estimate of 200 homes in 1963 and 200 more in 1964 is based on normal growth of the area, he said.

Water Commissioner F. Ray Light citing both the request of Cresaptown and engineers for the LaVale Sanitary District, asserted if the city allows more water to both "We will be selling more water per day than the safe yield per day that the city dam is able to supply. I cannot see how we can jeopardize the supply to people within the city by selling to those outside. I believe our supply is safe here if we conserve and will be able to take care of additional housing in the city. If we continue to sell water outside at a terrific rate, we will windup saying no to a person who wants to build one or 25 houses within the city limits."

Light added he did not feel the city should sell water to Cresaptown and to LaVale and pointed out he had already informed LaVale the city is considering limiting that community to the amount of water used in 1960.

"That is the position of my department," he said. Light told the Cresaptown group he appreciated their position. But, he said, he wanted to cite some figures:

ABL, he said, has asked the city for more water which will go to as much as 600,000 gallons a day in the next five years. The city has agreed to furnish this water, he said.

Engineers from LaVale have told him, Light continued, that the same rate of water use increase can be expected the next ten years. If true, that means water consumption there will be 1,464,000 gallons a day.

Cresaptown, he added, from now to 1964 expects to increase by 315,000 gallons a day.

At the present time, he said, average daily consumption is about 14,000,000 gallons. If the requests are granted, the amount would go to 16,379,000 a day.

At present, the safe yield at the dam is 14 1/4 million gallons a day. By using a low lift pump which does not increase the supply but makes more available, this could be raised to 16 1/4 million gallons a day.

Then, he said, that if the requests are granted the city would be selling more water than the dam's safe yield.

Both Walsh and Lowstutter said figures cited for the Cresaptown area water needs were perhaps a bit high and Lowstutter said the quantity of water used for housing is small when compared to industry. The Federal Housing Authority likes to have an average of 300 gallon a day per house assured. Cresaptown at present is averaging about 120 gallons a day and it is estimated those homes in the housing development would take about 200 a day.

Lowstutter also referred to the Savage River Dam as an additional source. He said if something is needed "We have to go out and get it. If we decide we want to do something, it is amazing how quickly it can be done."

Lowstutter said he believed there is sufficient water here to maintain the adequacy for Cumberland and outside users until water can be brought from the Savage River Dam. He said this is a prosperous town and it has the opportunity to go ahead.

Walsh pointed out that in view of the sale of water to ABL, it should be remembered that ABL is also supporting the housing development.

Mayor J. Edwin Keech said city officials did not discuss the proposal yesterday but promised to give an answer by next Monday.

The discussion on the issue, he said, will probably be held at Monday's pre-Council meeting.

City Asked To Form New Water Firm

A recommendation that the Evitts Creek Water Company which operate the city water supply be dissolved and a "metropolitan water company" established was made yesterday by C. M. Sanner, president of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Sanner made the statement at a meeting of the Mayor and Council with persons interested in supplying additional water to Cresaptown in view of prospects of a housing development near that community.

Sanner said perhaps a financial realignment of the present water company would be the answer to the city's problems of supplying water outside its limits.

F. Patrick Allender, of Carpenters Local 1024, who with Joseph E. Mullenax, president, represented the Western Maryland Central Labor Council, said labor would not "get a nickel" out of the housing development but that it was looking at the overall picture.

ABL, he said, is one of the top if not the top in its field in the world, and if ABL is as important as we think it is then "We don't have time to haggle over money. We must act now."

Allender said he understood council and the Board of Allegany County Commissioners are to meet this week to discuss mutual problems. He urged that action be taken to get Savage River dam water to the area. He said the area needs it and can get it if red tape can be cut.

B. A. Mason, who is also interested in developing a housing area, questioned where people would live if a new industry were to locate here. As for county operation, he said he did not doubt that would be the case for the city and county are so closely integrated that what is done for one is done for both.

Water Commissioner G. Ray Light said any expenditure by the city to increase its supply would go to a bond issue and he felt certain it would be rejected by citizens.

He said he did not see how the proposal to increase water supply to outside communities should be based upon the city "doing it all itself. The county should be interested, he said, adding "certainly they have more money."

Light added he did not think everything should be paid for by city taxpayers since it is not a 100 per cent city problem. I think the county should have something in this," he said.

Bids were referred to Street Commissioner John J. Long and City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum.

In another bid action, Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming was authorized to ask for bids on a triple combination pumper truck with a minimum capacity of 750 gallons.

Other activity before council today included two holdover matters.

One involved the filling of a vacancy on the Board of Zoning Appeals created by the vacancy of James M. Roby. Another application for the post was received from Carl R. Weatherholt, 1306 Michigan Avenue. Council last week had filed for consideration the application of Sidney H. Storer Sr.

Commissioner Fleming reported on the application last week of the Ismert-Hunckle Milling Company of Kansas City, to unload flour in bulk at Henderson Avenue across from the Community Baking Company.

Fleming said after conferences with John D. Bushy, district engineer of the State Roads Commission, it was decided certain hazards would be involved including blocking of part of Henderson Avenue by a truck. In view of that, he recommended the request be denied and council approved.

Brownies Hold Fly-Up Ceremony

A fly-up ceremony for six members of Brownie Troop 81 into Girl Scout Troop 85 was held in the basement of First Evangelical United Brethren Church.

Both units are sponsored by the church.

Jeannette Linaburg and Debbie Shanholts opened the meeting with a flag ceremony.

Flying up and receiving their wings were Connie Gordon, Vickie Burns, Joyce Error, Karen Kay Duby, Linda Moore and Linda Garlitz.

They received their pins from Mrs. Dorothy Thrasher, Brownie troop leader, and then made their three-fold Girl Scout promises and received their intermediate badges from Mrs. Nellie Youngblood, assistant Girl Scout Leader.

The candles were lighted representing the ten Girl Scout laws. The group then sang "When 'Er You Make A Promise."

The fly-ups then presented a skit. The trophy won by the Brownie Troop at the Girl Scout Olympics was displayed.

Quartet To Present Program Here

The "Potomac Valley Four," a male quartet from the Westernport Church of the Brethren, will present a sacred program today from 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. at the Living Stone Church of the Brethren, corner of Second and Cedar Streets.

This quartet, under the direction of Ralph Fike who also arranges their numbers, will sing "The best loved hymns of America." Mrs. Carol Lee Kelly will be the soloist.

Members of the group are Ellis Burke, first tenor; Victor Liller Jr., lead; Bill Shimer, baritone; and Ted Metcalfe, bass.

Physicians Urge Use Of Oral Polio Vaccine

Allegany and Garrett county physicians are encouraging their patients to take advantage of the oral polio vaccine clinics which will be held here next week, even if patients already have begun Salk shots.

Why? For these five principal reasons:

1. It is perfectly safe.
2. It is highly effective.
3. It could prevent an epidemic of crippling polio this summer.
4. It's tasteless, painless, and easy to take.
5. It's free — and it won't be available through ordinary channels for some time to come.

The Allegany-Garrett County Medical Society will sponsor and conduct clinics at 17 locations in Allegany County, to which persons from surrounding areas will be welcome.

Clinics will be open from 11 a. m. to 10 p. m. Friday and Saturday, June 2 and 3. School children will be given vaccine on Thursday, June 1.

Wyeth Laboratories, a Philadelphia drug company which produces the oral vaccine, will supply the polio preventive free of charge.

Allegany County will be only the fifth area of the United States to undergo test immunization with the new vaccine, which was developed by Dr. Albert B. Sabin of Cincinnati.

Similar programs are continuing in Cincinnati, and in Rochester, N. Y.; Middletown, Conn.; and Harrisburg, Pa. An estimated 60 to 70 million persons in the Soviet Union and allied countries have taken the American-developed vaccine without ill effect.

Next week's clinics will be the first in a series of three. Others will be held in October and November or December to provide protection against all three types of polio.

F. B. Driscoll Renamed Head Of Md. Barbers

Fred B. Driscoll of this city was re-elected president of the Maryland-District of Columbia Barbers Association at the annual convention in Allegany Labor Temple.

Other local men placed in office were J. William Groves and Joseph P. Derrico, both chosen as vice presidents.

Driscoll, in addition to being an Allegany County delegate to the General Assembly, is legislative representative for the Journeymen Barbers, Hair Dressers, Cosmetologists and Proprietors International Union.

Groves, president of Cumberland Local 314, is a member and secretary of the Maryland State Board of Barber Examiners.

Forty delegates and officers attended from Baltimore locals 241 and 795; Washington locals 239 and 671, and Cumberland Local 314.

Driscoll said the association discussed House Bill 134 which was passed by the last session of the legislature.

This measure puts barbers schools under the state Board of Barber Examiners. It provides for apprentice barbers to take 900 hours of practice and instruction in sanitation, sterilization and business management.

Two Parade Permits Granted By Council

The Mayor and Council yesterday granted two parade permits.

Voiture 164, 40 and 8, will conduct a "wreck" Saturday, June 17, at 1:45 p. m. The parade will leave the post home on Harrison Street and go to George Street, Baltimore Street, Mechanic Street and return to Harrison. The request was referred to Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming with power to act.

Ali Ghan Shrine Temple uniform bodies and initiates will participate in a Shrine ceremonial Saturday, June 10, at 4 p. m., traversing Baltimore Street, George Street and Harrison Street before disbanding at the City Shrine Club. Council granted this permission after Fleming said he had already been contacted and advised Shrine officials the parade was permissible as far as the Police Department was concerned.

Ann Landers . . . Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Does a wife have the right to ask her husband where he is going when he leaves the house after supper with no explanation? Does she have the right to ask him where he has been when he comes in at 3 a. m.?

Clark and I have been married less than a year. He started this about six weeks ago. I didn't want to be a nag or seem nosy, so I said nothing at first. Now I'm beginning to wonder. Last night when he left right after supper, I asked him where he was going. He said he was not a child and that it wasn't any of my business. I am 17 and he is 19. I need your advice. I can't talk to my mother about this because she was against our marriage.

—ALONE NIGHTS

DEAR ALONE: Welcome to the club—another couple of kids who don't know any more about the responsibilities of marriage than a hog knows about Sunday.

You bet a wife has the right to know where her husband is going—and where he has been. Marriage should mean mutual interests and doing things together. He should be taking you with him. Talk this problem over with your clergyman at once. Unless something is done to grow you two up in a hurry, your marriage is headed for the graveyard.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Usually you get letters from women who go with men for years and can't get them to put the ring on that important finger. Well, here's a switch for you. Please tell me what to do.

My girl is 29, very attractive, intelligent and has all the qualities I want in a wife. We've been going together for six years and I've been begging her for at least five of those six years to marry me. She always has had a long list of excuses. I told her last night it was next June or never.

She said she couldn't possibly leave her mother in that big house alone. Although I always swore I'd never move into her mother's home, this may be the only way to get the girl. What do you say?—BOB

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My son who is away at college phoned and asked if he could bring three classmates home for the weekend. One guest was a fellow 20 years of age. The other two were girls both 19. I said it would be just fine since we have a large home and can accommodate three extras easily when our daughter is not at home. (She is away at school.)

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I say no. The biblical cord has never been severed. Her mother probably pumps hot soup through it three times a day. Tell her goodbye.

They all arrived in good spirits, seemed to have a very fine time, and left this morning. I was surprised to find that the girls left their beds unmade and the room in a mess. My daughter's belongings were scattered all over. The girls had used her cosmetics, nail polish and remover, combs, brushes, hair clips, and they emptied a bottle of cologne.

My son will be wanting to invite them again. What shall I say?

—UNDECIDED MOTHER

DEAR UNDECIDED: Say "Yes" . . . if he will permit you to give the girls some advance instructions on proper behavior for weekend guests. Apparently they don't know how to conduct themselves and someone ought to tell them. If your son says he'd rather you wouldn't say anything, let him know he is not free to offer them the hospitality of your home.

Double Death In West Va. Termed Murder

OAK HILL, W. Va. (UPI) — State Police said Monday they believe a retired doctor and his elderly housekeeper were murdered at their home in nearby Scarbro, but they have not ruled out completely the possibility of murder-suicide.

The bodies of Dr. Arch H. Wingrove, 84, and Mrs. George Broyles, 76, were found Saturday night by neighbors. Coroner M. G. Hresan said they apparently died Thursday night.

Both had been shot in the head with a .25 caliber pistol which police said has not yet been found.

Authorities said there was no sign of a struggle in the home and nothing was known to have been taken. Nor was any motive for suicide known.

"It looks like a double murder, but there is a slight possibility of murder and suicide," State Police Sgt. R. E. Schnell said.

Non-Union Plumbers Win First Round Of Legal Fight

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Three non-union plumbers who were refused licenses by the city of Wheeling won the first round in an appeal to the West Virginia Supreme Court Monday.

By a 3-2 vote, the high court ordered the city to appear June 6 at a hearing to show cause why licenses should not be issued to Victor Sheldon, Lawrence McWhorter and Frederick Andreas. Judges Chauncey Browning and Thornton G. Berry would have refused the petition.

Ordered to appear at the hearing, or be represented there by counsel, were members of the Wheeling Board of Examiners of Plumbers headed by John Brammer.

The three petitioners contended in effect, in a mandamus action filed May 9, that they were denied city licenses because they did not belong to a plumbers' union local.

Nine Presumed

Second shift personnel who work in the area affected by the blast were told not to report for their jobs. Some personnel on the first shift, which was at work during the mishap, were dismissed early.

A telegram from J. D. Hayes, general manager of the Hercules department operating ABL, to Mr. Little, plant manager, said: "There are no words which will lessen the shock and tragedy to the families of the men lost and injured at ABL today. All of us should realize and remember that these men died in the cause of national defense."

Identification Begins
Early last night the bodies of the victims were being taken to the George Funeral Home for identification purposes.

After identification, the bodies were to be removed to funeral homes designated by the various families of the explosion victims. Reports from local hospitals last night indicated that all of the injured workers were improving.

Is Satisfactory
Mr. Haws was the most seriously injured of the six men. He sustained abdominal injuries and was reported in "satisfactory" condition at Memorial Hospital last night.

Mr. Emerick, who also was taken to Memorial Hospital, was reported in "satisfactory" condition with a shoulder injury.

Mr. Fore and Mr. Vizza both were reported in "good" condition at Sacred Heart Hospital. Mr. Fore sustained lacerations of the body and Mr. Vizza sustained a possible fractured shoulder.

Burns Itself Out
The explosion set off a fire which raged for seven hours.

The powder, burning at different intensities, resulted in a rumor of a second explosion about 4 p. m.

It was part of the same fire, the plant said, adding that the powder burned itself out before 5 p. m.

The blaze was handled by the rocket center's fire department, which is trained for and has equipment for the type of fires to be expected on the reservation.

Volunteer fire companies of the Cumberland area were generous in offers to aid by sending fire companies and ambulances.

Two Home Permits Are Issued Here

Wesley A. McGraw, B Avenue, Potomac Park, has been issued a permit to construct a 36 by 28 foot brick dwelling at a cost of about $12,000, according to James G. Stevenson, clerk of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, who said the home will have a concrete block foundation, composition roof and a basement.

Paul Shearer, 76 Linden Street, Frostburg, was also issued a permit to construct a brick home at a cost of about $8,000. The 28 by 32 foot dwelling will have a concrete block foundation, composition roof and a basement.

Three Cars Crash On Willowbrook Road

No injuries were reported yesterday afternoon as three cars piled up in a spectacular crash on Willowbrook Road.

The accident occurred at 4:30 p. m., police said, as a car driven by Robert Streett, Christie Road, was proceeding east on Willowbrook Road when west-bound cars driven by Anthony Huffman and William McElfish, both of Flintstone, came around the corner on the wrong side of the road.

Officer Clarence Valentine, who investigated with Officer Kenneth Henry, said the car Huffman was driving struck the left rear of the Streett car and that the McElfish car, following it, hit the Streett car and left it hanging on a culvert.

East Side Fire Department was summoned by police as a precaution in case fire should break out when the vehicles were being towed away.

What About All Those Sacrifices?

President Kennedy has been accused of blaming the American people for not making sacrifices when he had not called upon them for specific sacrifices. Now a Long Island newspaper publisher has called upon him to be more specific, and the President has complied by listing a score of items.

For instance, he has called for the closing of Army bases which now serve little purpose, to which interests that would be affected by the closing of those bases have responded with protests and political pressure which did not take into account the nation's urgent defense needs.

The other items listed by the President are more controversial, ranging from higher postage rates to a call for newspapers not to publish facts that may help the enemy. It is a heterogeneous list, and some of the items have no place on it because they are political. There are honest differences of opinion on higher wages, for instance, which people should be able to oppose as unwise without being accused of unwillingness to make sacrifices.

As to the publishing of data helpful to the enemy, newspapers do not publish such information unless it is generally known or revealed by some government official. If government officials release such information it is expecting too much of editors to ask them to decide on their own initiative that the officials were wrong; but it is not asking for sacrifice.

The sacrifices the President calls for should be those which honest and objective listeners can pretty well agree are necessary and desirable.

These Days

The Intellectuals

The word, intellectual, used to mean a person who devoted himself to the pursuit of knowledge—usually the humanities. In Czarist Russia, a man who read books, wore pince-nez eyeglasses and perhaps a goatee said he was of the intelligentsia to distinguish himself from a peasant or a merchant.

In the United States, where everyone was expected to be able to read and write and even to quote a sentence from a poet, it was assumed for most of our history that all men and women possessed—and used their intellects.

That, of course, was before we became class-conscious and sought particular status in lieu of riches such as Horatio Alger regarded as the goal of all good and virtuous men. It was during Franklin D. Roosevelt's regime that the word, intellectual, came into everyday use in this country and it was during Senator Joe McCarthy's hey-day that the term, anti-intellectual, was applied to those who favored Joe or Joe's purposes even if they disliked his so-called methods.

Such intellectuals as Dr. J. B. Matthews, a linguist of wide renown and William F. Buckley Jr., who has brought glory to Yale by including it in a title with God, have been described as anti-intellectuals. The truth is that Matthews and Buckley would, in Europe and Asia, pass for intellectuals while some who regard them as anti-intellectuals would be looked upon as proletarians masquerading as doctors of philosophy.

The standards of American universities are so diverse that it is difficult to determine what a collegiate or university degree actually means. For instance, a B.A. from some American colleges represents hard work; from others, it merely means attendance. An M.A. from some American universities often means a high standard of intellectual work and discipline; from others, an A is as difficult to get as an entrance into Heaven; in others, it is granted for excellence in apple polishing or for being a big wheel.

The result of this confusion is that many present themselves as intellectuals who hardly know any subject beyond a fly-speck of a so-called discipline.

Recently I went down to Greenwich Village in New York where I was reminded of the good, old days just before World War I. The intellectuals of those days sat in Polly's Restaurant discussing any subject that arose with more emotion than is today hard to discover even in a Faculty Club. In those days, an educated man tried to know everything and to read everything. He turned from politics to painting with ease; from music to mathematics as though it were the same subject, which forsooth, it is. It was a time when an educated man was eclectic and an argument was in the realm of thought not of definitions—which cultured persons knew all about.

I went to a cafe called "Figaro." There were assembled all sorts of human beings in every state of disarray. Some were playing chess; others were drinking coffee. But everybody was talking and it was a different kind of talk from that which one hears at such fanciful restaurants as The Colony, or "21," because these people have nothing to do with business or with gossip. They are not concerned with the love affairs of this hoodlum or that multi-millionaire. The conversation was impersonal and abstract and unselfish. Young people talked because they wanted to discover what to them could eventually be the Truth. They supported their arguments with a wide range of knowledge. Some of it was tripe but none of it was useless. And that is how the intellect is drilled. It is disputation that does that.

The so-called "brilliant, young crowd," which nowadays sits about Washington thinking out policy and making mistakes in Cuba, Laos, Korea, about the dollar and gold and what not—is neither so brilliant nor so young. Some have served under Roosevelt; some under Truman. There is a hopefulness about them but also an opportunism which, when expressed in action, can often be ugly and degrading—as opportunism so often is. A true intellectual cannot be an opportunist any more than he can be one of a great crowd.

Suspended Progress

Laos: Exercise In International Hypocrisy

By Joseph Alsop

GENEVA

A visitor from Mars to the conference on Laos might really imagine that something serious was about to happen here. The hotels jammed with high ranking delegates; the elaborate schedules of formal meetings and informal official talks; the Maison de la Presse thronged with representatives of the entire world's news media—these outward signs suggest a great event in the making.

But let this Martian visitor look again, and listen. Let him listen, for instance, to the members of the British and French delegations who have been hopefully suggesting that the conference "has a real chance of success" because the Soviets "really may want a truly neutral Laos."

As it happens, every sign indicates that the Kremlin has directly authorized, partly directed and strongly supported the attempt to establish Communist control in Laos. The first essay was made in nineteen fifty nine. On that occasion, the North Vietnamese leader, Ho Chi Minh, who is a Kremlin satellite rather than a Peking satellite was actually staying in Moscow with Nikita S. Khrushchev when the first North Vietnamese Communist elements pushed across the Laotian border.

As for the more recent and much more serious attack on Laos, it has been quite overtly supplied by a Soviet airlift. It has been openly encouraged by the Kremlin. And when the British and American governments sought to halt the attack by demanding a ceasefire, it was the Soviets who dragged their feet and delayed answering while more and more key positions were occupied by the Communists.

Only a day or so ago, the British Foreign Minister, Lord Home, actually had to threaten to break up this conference in order to secure the consent of the Soviet Foreign Minister, Andrei Gromyko, to the most modest and inadequate measures for policing the long delayed ceasefire. The ceasefire is being grossly breached as these words are written. Meanwhile the Soviet press is publishing boasting articles about the supplies going to the Communist forces in Laos.

In these circumstances, the Martians would be justified in respectfully inquiring how on earth anyone can believe that the Soviets "really want a neutral Laos" instead of a Communist controlled Laos. And the Martians would be justified, too, in turning from the British and French, and asking the leaders of the American delegation why on earth they go on talking about Laotian neutrality being assured by "effective" international control arrangements.

After all, the Geneva Conference of nineteen fifty four set up an Indian-Canadian-Polish International Control Commission to supervise and sanctify the partition of Indochina, including Laos. That Commission, which has always continued to operate in North and South Vietnam, has never from the outset controlled anything whatever. It has in fact produced no result at any time except by its occasional spasms of pro-Communist bias.

We have had other lessons in the value of Communist acceptance of International Control Commissions—in Korea most notably. But now, apparently, one of the announced grand objectives of American diplomacy is to commit the future of Laos to still another International Control Commission, in the apparent belief that this will be helpful. If a reader of Lewis Carroll, the Martians might well ask whether the Western leaders have not been following the method of the White Queen, who boasted that she had trained herself to believe as many as "six impossible things before breakfast."

Of course the leaders of the West have not adopted the White Queen's system, nor have they unanimously taken leave of their senses. What is happening in Geneva is only apparently lunatic. In reality, this is a gigantic, possibly useful exercise in interna-

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

NO SUMMER HIATUS—Members of Congress, particularly the younger ones with growing children, have always longed for better working conditions. Take vacations, for instance.

The passing years have firmly established the summer holiday as an American institution. It is enjoyed by rich men, poor men, beggar men, thieves, doctors, lawyers, Indian chiefs, alike. However, not by senators and representatives.

They must stay in Washington's sweltering summer heat and legislate while others relax. This is hard enough on the legislators themselves, but it is more difficult for their wives and children who are wont to complain about "dad's" lack of family life with them.

Anyway, this year a bi-partisan group of congressional wives decided to do something about it. They started working up petitions to be filed with the proper congressional leaders urging a recess for the summer and a return to work in the fall.

The wives of House Republican members announced they had 79 names on their petition. The Democratic wives were working just as hard. And 33 senators had co-sponsored a resolution to recess that body during July, August and September.

Then came the cold water. House Speaker Sam Rayburn snorted: "We're not going to do it. It's the greatest nonsense I've ever heard. If we come back in the autumn we may never get away from here."

Cluster Headache Is One Form Of Migraine

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Cluster headache refers to a form of migraine in which—for weeks at a time—the individual suffers from bouts of headache. A daily attack, lasting a few minutes to an hour, is the usual story and aching is so severe the victim paces the floor trying to withstand the ordeal. He describes the intolerable pain as constant, boring, or throbbing at the outer side of one eye.

The cluster subsides in time and the person may be free from distress for many weeks. Recurrence can be expected but the prompt use of ergotamine at the first sign of distress may abort the seizure.

Every obstetrical department makes certain that all newborns are identified to prevent the calamity of a baby mixup. Some hospitals utilize paired, numbered wristbands, one of which is attached to the infant and the other to the mother. Others use a card index system that includes the mother's fingerprints and the baby's footprints.

The latest method is a photograph of the ear of the newborn. Obstetricians at Cook County hospital in Chicago say the ear of each child is unique and enough variations occur among babies to distinguish one newborn from another. This hospital is planning to use a special photo record that will include a photograph of the baby's ear as well as the date of birth, the sex, and the mother's fingerprints. The name of the child, the hospital, and the physician will be included.

The prairie gopher is lucky to be oblivious of his blood cholesterol. He never reads health columns and has no physician to warn him about such things. These ground squirrels have blood cholesterol levels that exceed those of man; they vary from 160 to 500. The normal levels for man extend up to 260.

When small amounts of cholesterol are added to the feeding mixture of these animals, the levels go to 1,000 or more. But nothing happens to the fun loving gopher because he does not develop hardening of the arteries when given extra cholesterol, as do laboratory rabbits, chickens, and other living creatures.

The most enjoyable way to observe a vegetable diet, suggests a not-entirely disinterested restaurateur, is to let the cow eat it—and then you eat the cow.

Circumstantial Evidence Shows CIA Helped Put Castro In Power

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—For some time rumors have persisted in the diplomatic corps that the Central Intelligence Agency, which attempted to knock Fidel Castro out of office in an abortive invasion of Cuba last month, two years earlier had helped to put Castro in power. Specifically, diplomatic reports have persisted that CIA agents, anxious to get rid of President Batista, had supplied arms to Castro during his guerrilla war in the Sierra Madre Mountains.

This column, after considerable research, can now report that there is circumstantial though not conclusive evidence that Central Intelligence was linked with the arms shipments to Castro which finally put him in power.

The evidence rests on the fact that Castro got arms from the same company, the International Armament Corporation, which the CIA had used to send arms to Guatemala to overthrow the Arbenz Government, plus the further fact that the company had been organized by a former CIA employee Samuel Cummings.

Central Intelligence has sometimes operated either through American companies, or by organizing special companies for a special job, such as shipping arms to a revolutionary group.

Sam Cummings' International Armament Corporation was one of these. Formerly employed by CIA, he received financial support from CIA to set up an arms company just before the U.S.-financed tional hypocrisy. And the purpose of the exercise is to put a polite face on what has happened and is still happening in Laos.

Since the beginning of the successful Communist attack just before the new year, the main event in Laos has been the failure of the Kennedy Administration's outwardly "firm" policy. This "firm" policy took the form of an apparent decision to send troops to Laos, in partnership with the Thais and other SEATO powers, unless two objectives could be attained. First there was to be a prompt cease-fire if it could be secured. And second, "true Laotian neutrality," an "Austrian status for Laos," was to be arranged by negotiation.

The decision looked, at the time, like a workable compromise. In a "truly neutral Laos," of course, there would be no room for the several thousand Communist border crossers from North Vietnam who are there today. Despite the fatuously repeated story that the non-Communist Laos "never fight," the record shows that the non-Communist in Laos have always done very well indeed when they had no one to oppose them but pro-Communist Laos without external aid. An equilibrium assuring Laotian neutrality therefore seemed entirely possible.

But in fact the ceasefire was not promptly granted. No American troops were sent none the less. The Laotian pro-Communists continued to win victories with the help of the border crossers from North Vietnam. The "firm" American policy was thus shown to lack real firmness.

Hence the non-Communist Laotians were left to make the best they could of an increasingly bad business. That is what is now happening in Laos, in the negotiations between the Royal Government, the Laotian Communists and the so called neutralist group led by Prince Souvanna Phouma. And these negotiations are much more likely to determine the future of Laos than this bizarre conference, at which so many important persons daily pretend to believe impossible things before, and even after breakfast.

Guatemalan revolt against President Arbenz. He supplied the arms that threw Arbenz out of office.

Probe Warranted

Later some of his arms got to Castro. How closely either he or the CIA was involved with these latter shipments is difficult to prove, and should merit a full-scale senate investigation.

The House Committee on Un-American Activities has already done some investigating and reported in a confidential memo, Feb. 2, 1960:

"Mr. Chester A. Emrick, room 7048, Internal Revenue Building, who is Chief of Investigations for the Customs Bureau, was interviewed in connection with the above matter. He said that Samuel, or Sam Cummings, as he referred to him, was an employee of the Central Intelligence Agency some few years ago. Cummings is the active head of the subject company (Interarmco).

"Mr. Emrick stated that he knows the CIA invested $100,000 in Cummings' venture four years ago, or at least had that much invested in the operation at that time. He said he does not know what the situation is now between Cummings and the CIA, but feels that it would be well for someone to make a thorough check of the International Armament Corp.

"He stated that there is no question that this corporation sold arms to Castro through his confederates in the United States. Mr. Emrick asserted that the subject corporation (Interarmco) is now selling arms to Castro's opposition in the Dominican Republic, but that it is a difficult matter to prove."

The State Department also bore out the confidential connection between the International Armament Corporation and Central Intelligence. The Un-American Activities Committee reported in a memo dated Feb. 3, 1960:

"Top-Secret"

Mr. Robert N. Margrave, deputy director of the Office of Munitions Control, Department of State, was interviewed in connection with the above matter and stated that he also knew of the Central Intelligence Agency's involvement or interest with the subject companies. He said this information was considered top secret four years ago and that he would not want to be quoted as a source.

"Mr. Margrave said that he has no knowledge that subject companies have been in violation of the law, but on the other hand, they are not accorded special treatment because of their former, and possibly present, association with CIA."

Further interviews by this column with former employees of Interarmco established beyond any doubt that its arms had been sold to Castro's confederates in the United States for use in his guerrilla warfare against President Batista. At that same period, incidentally, U. S. law enforcement officers were cracking down hard against any private sale of arms to Batista, while the State Department had completely cut off Batista's official purchase of arms.

This is the circumstantial evidence linking Central Intelligence to Fidel Castro's rise to power. While not conclusive, it's sufficient to induce the Senate Subcommittee on Latin American Affairs to conduct a full-scale investigation.

So far most of its members have shied away from any searching probe. Senator Morse has been the most active. He has called Allen Dulles, various state department officials to see what went wrong in Cuba. But the committee has not hired investigators or issued search warrants—the only way to get the real facts regarding Central Intelligence.

The members of this subcommittee are: Wayne Morse, Ore., Chairman; Russell Long, La., John Sparkman, Ala., Frank Church, Idaho, Democrats; Bourke Hickenlooper, Ia., George Aiken, Vt., Homer Capeheart, Ind., Republicans.

Headlines and Footnotes

Newton Minow, the bold new chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, is cracking down not only upon television but telephone service too. He is investigating the feasibility of a $100,000,000 reduction in long-distance rates—was put up to it by New York's crusading Congressman Emanuel Celler, chairman of the powerful House Judiciary Committee, who argued for lower rates during a private luncheon with Minow. . . . President Kennedy is planning to appoint his former commanding officer in the Navy, retired Rear Adm. John Harlan, as the new maritime boss. . . . The real reason Senate Republican Leader Everett Dirksen felt the lash of Tennessee Sen. Albert Gore's tongue goes back to an incident a year ago. The two men had been personal friends until Dirksen unaccountably blocked an insignificant bill that Gore had been championing. The tart-tongued Tennessee took it as a personal affront, began making barbed cracks about Dirksen in the cloakroom. Gore's remark on the Senate floor about Dirksen's "pompous verbosity" just slipped out naturally. . . . The formation of a labor party, a prospect that gives the shivers to both Republicans and Democrats, has begun quietly in New York City. Spearheading the new party are Harry Van Arsdale, head of the powerful New York Central Trades Council, and John O'Rourke, boss of New York City's 165,000 Teamsters. Despite AFL-CIO and Teamster differences, they are working together to organize a labor party. . . . In his attack on labor abuses at missile bases, Arkansas investigating Sen. John McClellan neglected to mention his old enemy, Teamster boss Jimmy Hoffa. Reason: Hoffa last year issued the kind of strict orders only he can issue, absolutely forbidding any Teamster work stoppage at defense installations.

Heady Journalism

By John Crosby

This month's "Esquire" opens with an immensely readable story by Malcolm Muggeridge called "The Tomization of Sir Winston Churchill." It is a candid glimpse of the growing senility of a great man, full of the most offhand critical honesty that Americans find so shocking, and it will almost certainly get a blizzard of denunciatory mail, Americans being far more sentimental about Churchill than are the English.

I bring it up because it is the sort of thing "Esquire" is doing, flying boldly in the face of its readers' displeasure and the Let's-at-all-costs-be-lovable mystique that has gripped all the other mass magazines. Some years ago, after Sen. McCarthy expired, "Esquire" published an illuminating article by Richard Rovere about the last days of the Junior Senator from Wisconsin—a dispassionate, clinical, searching, and I imagine totally infuriating to the McCarthy mob—which taught me more than the true workings of democracy than anything I had read in years.

I don't want you to get the idea that "Esquire" succeeds in infuriating only the other guy. It sometimes succeeds in infuriating me. That's what I like about it. It's writing heady, challenging, irritating, alive journalism and Arnold Gingrich, its publisher, has been editing by the seat of his pants, not paying any attention to those reader surveys which so enchant (no intimidate) the other mass magazines.

Following Mr. Muggeridge's piece is one by Sybil Bedford from her book, "The Faces of Justice," about justice—or rather the lack of it—in the French lower courts and that, I guarantee, will make you thoroughly restive, no matter what your political complexion. It's written with a good-hearted easy cynicism without a trace of the professional "Let's Do Something About It Now" without school of editorial preachiness. Very interesting.

Now, let's see what else? Well, Dorothy Parker still writes book reviews that are brief, felicitous, and full of more than an echo of the Dorothy Parker of the '20s. I got the feeling she's read the books and I'm not at all sure that the other reviewers really do. On the debit side there are some perfectly ordinary Magazine Article type magazine articles on sailboat racing and how to smoke a pipe.

But then you come across "Social Climbing and How" by Gore Vidal and right away you are brought up short. No one should write articles called "Social Climbing and How." I mean it's un-American. I mean one doesn't! Does one. So you read on.

"I suggest we take a cold look at the snobs about us and examine the art of the social climber, his tricks and devices, recalling with tolerance that grand old climber (transatlantic division) Henry James who once remarked, with a certain edge, that the pursuit of a social career was as reasonable an aim in life as any other." And how can you resist a piece that opens with such candor?

The nice thing about "Esquire" is its insistence on a certain kind of world and its assumption that we're all a part of that world. It has tone, this magazine. Of course, I would be the first to say that it doesn't always bring it off. There's a picture essay called "How to Tell a Celebrity," which gives the magazine a chance to display Nancy Kovack, mostly undressed and mugging, in a number of gag shots that were not very funny. "Esquire's" cartoons still strike me as hard working but not really inspired. (But then I feel this about all cartoons, including those in "The New Yorker" these days. Cartoon humor is in a decline. Or else I am.)

But these are mild reservations. On the plus side "Esquire" has some excellent regulars, in addition to Miss Parker, such as Nat Hentoff on jazz, Dwight MacDonald, the waspish gentleman who writes about the movies, and Joseph Wechsberg, who writes with love about food.

Not the best but perhaps the most typical piece in this month's "Esquire" is one called "Scouting Report on the Avant Garde." "Don't look forward; the avant garde is already here," says the subtitle. And "Esquire" assumes you're a part of the avant garde—or otherwise what are you doing reading the magazine?

This is marvellously flattering and it seems to be working with a vast number of readers.

Clarysville Fire Dept. Begins Fund Campaign

FROSTBURG — At a recent meeting of the Clarysville Volunteer Fire Company it was decided to conduct a fund raising campaign by the use of coin cards. Committees have been set up by Thomas Storey, president, to distribute the cards in the area protected by the company. Eckhart, Vale Summit, Hoffman and Clarysville.

The cards are designed that all property owners can place a quarter in them each week. They will be collected by the firemen sometime in September or October. President Storey said it is hoped that enough money will be realized from this project that the company will be able to have a siren installed in the community of Eckhart and to also replace the present one at the fire station. The cards will be distributed in the next 10 days and any property owner that is not home can pick up a card at the fire house. The boys 4-H club, sponsored by the company, will take a hike Saturday leaving the fire hall at 10 a. m. and returning at 3 p. m. Francis Fatkin, leader, says each boy should bring his own lunch.

Secretary Ribicoff Says Redevelopment Act Passage Will Aid West Virginia

ELKINS, W. Va. (UPI)—Welfare Secretary Abraham Ribicoff said Monday that passage of the Area Redevelopment Act could be a turning point in the history of West Virginia, and that its educational aspects are the key to its success.

Speaking at a civic dinner honoring Gov. W. W. Barron and Sen. Jennings Randolph, both of Elkins, Ribicoff said the new law can help all states with problems of readjustment to economic and industrial change.

Noting that it "includes a very significant new program of vocational education to meet the all-important requirement for men and women properly trained to take advantage of the new opportunities ahead," he said:

"I look on the educational aspect of the program as an important key to success of the whole undertaking. This country's progress has always depended to a large extent on men who knew machinery — how to make it and how to run it."

Ribicoff said training is needed "for jobs that don't even exist today, but which will be hungry for people with the right kind of training tomorrow."

He said such needs are being determined by the Labor Department.

Dixie Classic Junked As Aftermath Of Cage Scandals

De-Emphasis Is Approved By Trustees

North Carolina Imposes Limits On Recruiting

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Acting to save its scandal-touched basketball program, the consolidated University of North Carolina Monday junked the rich Dixie Classic holiday tournament and imposed strict limits on recruiting outside its conference area.

Almost to a man, trustees stood up to signal approval of the stern de-emphasis measures invoked by President William C. Friday and his administration in the wake of bribery charges involving players at the university in Chapel Hill and State college in Raleigh. Only three or four of the 100 trustees voted against the action.

Aim To Save Athletics

"Our aim is to save athletics by de-emphasizing certain practices and removing certain influences which have been detrimental to college sports and taken away from them the very qualities which make them valuable as a part of education," Friday reported to the trustees.

Friday gave no indication that there were direct links between the Dixie Classic tournament and the game-fixing scandals.

He said that holiday tournaments, such as the classic, "exemplify the exploitation for public entertainment or for budgetary and commercial purposes of a sports program which properly exists as an adjunct to collegiate education."

Gov. Terry Sanford, presiding as chairman of the trustees, made clear his approval. He said the university administration deserved thanks for "a good job well done."

Invitations Withdrawn

Here is how the actions announced by Friday will affect basketball programs at University and State College.

1. The Dixie Classic, played in Reynolds Coliseum on the State college campus here will be discontinued immediately. This means invitations must be withdrawn for four intersectional teams which had been lined up for the 1961 classic to meet State, North Carolina, Wake Forest and Duke. The four intersectional teams are Colgate, Tulane, Illinois and Stanford.

In addition, games which UNC and State play this season and thereafter will be limited to: the 14 conference games required by Atlantic Coast Conference rules, the ACC tournament, the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball championship and "not more than two additional games this season and every season thereafter with nonconference teams."

Limit Recruiting

2. To put limits on the number of players recruited from beyond the ACC area, "not more than two athletic grants-in-aid will be awarded in basketball in any given year at each institution to student from states outside the ACC area." Over a four-year period, Friday pointed out, this would mean six varsity players and two freshmen. He said the policy will be effective with the freshman class of 1962.

The ACC states are Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina.

The fact that basketball teams of recent years "have been formed of a disproportionate number of students from regions of the country distant from our state and our conference," Friday said, is evidence that "we have recruited these players with a view primarily to their skill as performers and without regard for the desirability of fielding teams which are more-or-less representative of the normal composition of our student bodies."

3. An examination of the program of athletic scholarships has shown it to be sound, and grants will be continued for basketball. Merely to discontinue the grants, Friday said, "would be a backward step."

Ban Off Season Play

4. Basketball players will be advised that "none is to engage in any organized competition of any kind during the summer months. The penalty for doing so," Friday said, "will be loss of eligibility for the following season."

Giants Conquer Cardinals, 3-1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The first-place San Francisco Giants snapped a three-game losing streak by defeating the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1 Monday night.

Jack Sanford was credited with the victory, although he had to have eighth-inning help from Bob Bolin to square his record at 3-3. Orlando Cepeda belted a solo home run, his 11th of the season, in the eighth to give the Giants an insurance run.

Sanford and Ernie Broglio were hooked up in a scoreless duel for five innings but sloppy fielding by Broglio's teammates gave the Giants two tainted runs in the sixth. San Francisco 000 010-3 5 0 St. Louis 000 001 000-1 9 3 Sanford, Bolin (9), O'Dell (9) and Landrith, Broglio, McDermott (9) and Smith, Winner-Sanford (3-3), Loser-Broglio (3-5), HR—Cepeda.

TROPHIES ARE PRESENTED—Robert Shewbridge (center), senior backfield star was presented the 12th annual James H. Hipsley Memorial Award and Richard Bittner (right), senior basketball player, received the Ted Morris Memorial Trophy, at the Fort Hill Boosters Club dinner last night at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club. The Morris Memorial Trophy, named in memory of the late Ted Morris, a Fort Hill High School booster, is a new award, and was presented by John Morris, brother of the deceased. Victor D. Heisey, Fort Hill principal, presented the Hipsley trophy to Shewbridge. Rex Pyles, (left) basketball mentor at Alderson-Broadbent College, Philippi, W. Va., named the NAA Coach of the Year, was the guest speaker, and is shown shaking the hand of Bittner. Donald W. Mason, assistant state's attorney, was the toastmaster. Two hundred and fifty persons attended the dinner.

Yankees Beat Orioles, 8-2

Fisher Is Loser, Boyer Hits Homer

NEW YORK (AP)—Clete Boyer broke up a perfect game by Baltimore right-hander Jack Fisher with a lead-off single in the sixth inning and then walked a three-run homer in the eighth that gave the New York Yankees an 8-2 victory over the Orioles Monday night.

Four runs in the seventh inning, interrupted by a rhabarb, wrapped it up for the Yankees with Yogi Berra's single breaking a 1-1 tie as Fisher wound up with his third straight loss. Boyer then sent his second home run of the season into the left field seats for three unearned runs in the eighth.

Elston Howard's sinking liner in the seventh to second baseman Marv Breeding touched off the rhabarb. Breeding, acting as though he had caught the liner, threw to third in an attempt to double up Mickey Mantle, who had run home. Umpire Larry Napp stepped in and ruled Breeding had caught the ball on a hop and all hands were safe.

Monbouquette Hurls Seven-Hit Victory

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Monbouquette, nerveless Boston right-hander, pitched his way out of a critical bases-loaded plight and into a 4-1 victory over Chicago Monday night.

Focal point of Monbouquette's seven-hitter was the sixth inning when he flanked a Roy Sievers single with a pair of walks. There was none out and frantic Red Sox bullpen activity when the gum-chewing ace ran up a 3-1 count on Sherm Lollar, then whipped two strikes past him.

J. C. Martin hit into a double play for the finishing touch. Hiking his record to 3-4, Monbouquette lowered his earned run average to a brilliant 1.93 for 60 2-3 innings.

Dick Groat's Homer Sinks Braves, 2-1

Haddix Picks Up 3d Win Of Season

MILWAUKEE (UPI) —Shortstop Dick Groat's solo home run in the eighth inning, his first of the year, gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 2-1 victory over the Milwaukee Braves Monday night as Harvey Haddix picked up his third consecutive win of the season without a loss.

Groat, who had just two home runs all of last season, hit one of Bob Buhl's pitches over the left field fence with two out to break a 1-1 deadlock. The Pirates had picked up their first run, which was unearned, when Bill Virdon, who had walked, scored from third on a grounder by Smoky Burgess.

Haddix struck out seven and allowed just one walk in going all the way. Buhl, the loser, who now has a 1-4 record, had given up just four hits before he was lifted for a pinch-batter in the eighth.

The Braves got their only run when second baseman Frank Bolling led off the fourth inning with a solo homer over the left field fence.

Paul Richards Is Named Manager Of AL All-Stars

Games Scheduled For San Francisco And Boston Parks

BOSTON (AP)—Paul Richards of the Baltimore Orioles Monday was named American League All Star team manager by President Joe Cronin.

The selection of Richards, named Associated Press AL manager of the year in 1960, marks the third time since 1933 that the tradition of picking the previous year's pennant winning pilot has been broken.

The retirement of Casey Stengel, who managed the New York Yankees to the junior circuit flag a year ago, necessitated the action. Otherwise Stengel would have qualified automatically for the All Star honor.

"I would be proud and pleased to have any one of our present ten managers fill in for Casey," Cronin said. "But I feel Richards earned the honor through his fine job last season."

Richards, 52, a native of Waxahachie, Tex., who blended youth and experience into a surprise second place finish for his Orioles last year, told Cronin he was delighted to take the assignment.

The two All Star games this season will be played in San Francisco July 11 and Boston July 31. The eight starting players, pitchers excepted, will be picked next month by the vote of all active

Nine Presumed Dead, Six Hurt In ABL Blast

Authorities Begin Probe Of Tragedy

Bodies Of Victims Being Identified In Funeral Home

Nine workers are missing and presumed dead, six others were injured and two small buildings were destroyed by an explosion at the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory at 8:50 a.m. yesterday.

An intensive search of the entire area was still underway several hours after the explosion in an effort to locate the personnel listed as missing.

Fire and severe heat at the explosion site restricted attempts to survey the area and, for a short time, the fire burned out of control.

Are Presumed Dead

The missing:
Howard D. Dean, 22, of Goldsborough Avenue, Romney, W.Va., operator.

Michael R. Evick, 24, of 10 McKenzie Road, LaVale, operator.

George Richard Geiger, 25, Corriganville, Route 1, Cumberland, operator.

Charles R. Getson, 33, Dudley Terrace, Lonaconing, maintenance mechanic.

David L. Kenney, 27, of 550 Park Avenue, LaVale, operator.

Robert A. Whipp, 57, of 535 South Main Street, Keyser, W. Va., maintenance mechanic.

Kenneth D. Young, 25, of 38 Potomac Street, Ridgeley, W. Va., operator.

Herman C. Wilson, 63, of 36 Hill Street, Frostburg, maintenance mechanic.

Charles J. Isner, 41, of 146 Frederick Street, Cumberland, craft helper maintenance mechanic.

Six Are Injured

The injured:
Jesse L. Haws, 43, of 21 Richard Way, LaVale, area supervisor.

John R. Fore, 31, of 504 A Street, LaVale, technical assistant.

Alfred J. Vizza, 48, of 41 Uhl Avenue, Frostburg, pipe fitter.

Edward G. Farrell, 44, Mt. Savage, craft helper pipe fitter.

Thurston Henderson, 34, Romney, W.Va., shift foreman.

Return To Work

The sixth person was employed by an outside contractor, the George F. Hazeltine Company. He is Vernon R. Emerick, Wellersburg, Pa., and is listed in "good" condition in Memorial Hospital.

Listed as seriously injured in Memorial Hospital is Mr. Haws.

Mr. Vizza and Mr. Fore are in Sacred Heart Hospital in "good" condition.

Mr. Henderson and Mr. Farrell returned to duty following treatment at Sacred Heart Hospital.

Follows Open House
Ironically, the explosion came a day after a two-day open house during which more than 8,000 people toured the facility.

The open house was held to mark the installation's 15th anniversary.

Were Not Open
The buildings destroyed by the blast were not open to visitors over the weekend.

One of the structures was the installation's pilot plant cast building, where casting powder, one of the ingredients used in propellant systems, is poured into molds.

The other structure leveled by the explosion was located near the cast building and was known as a "conditioning" building, where missile motors are subjected to various temperature tests ranging from 150 degrees Fahrenheit to 60 degrees below zero.

Names of the missing workers were not made public for several hours after the explosion because of procedures for notifying relatives.

Many of the missing personnel resided at considerable distances from the plant and this complicated the relay of information to the survivors.

Probe Begins
An investigation is being conducted to determine the exact cause of the explosion and the extent of the damage.

Production of the Navy's two-stage missile, Polaris, will not be affected by the blast, plant officials said.

Commander E. P. Loflin, U. S. Navy's permanent representative at the installation, and Duard H. Little, plant manager for Hercules Powder Company which staffs and operates the government-owned facility, announced that work schedules will be briefly interrupted.

Closeup Of ABL Blast Area

This is a closeup of the blast area at the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory near Pinto where nine workers were killed and six others injured yesterday morning. An investigation is being conducted to establish the cause of the blast. This picture was taken by an ABL staff employee shortly after the explosion in the pilot plant at 8:50 a.m.

Blast Area Near One Stop In ABL Tour

Pilot Plant Is Involved

Yesterday's explosion and fire at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory occurred in the pilot plant area, near one of the stops during the tour of the facilities this past weekend.

Several thousand persons visited the pilot plant area during the two-day tour which was held to mark the 15th anniversary of operation of the facility at Pinto.

However, the two buildings which were destroyed yesterday were not included in the tour over the weekend.

The pilot plant area consists of three large buildings connected by an overhead conveyor system. Constructed in 1951, this facility was designed to produce propellant charges for the ABL rocket development programs.

One of the buildings was used to assemble rocket units and to assemble and disassemble molds for manufacturing propellant charges.

In one building, propellant charges were made in a mold by the addition of casting powder and casting solvent followed by curing at elevated temperatures. Propellant ingredients were added to the molds in the second building.

The molds then traveled on the conveyor system to the curing bays located at the end of the curing phase, the powder and solvent combined to form a cast double-base solid propellant charge.

At the loading room of the Pilot Plant area, visitors to ABL over the weekend saw where propellant charges and various rocket parts were placed inside or attached to the rocket chamber. Many of the ABL-designed and developed propellant charges and rocket units were on display in the pilot plant area over the weekend.

The groups estimated $2 million will be needed to finance the improvement program. They hope to obtain the funds from the state and federal governments.

Among contemplated projects at the flood control dam site near the Fayette-Somerset county border are new and improved highways, better boat docking facilities and about 5,000 new summer home sites.

The group said the program would create about 1,500 jobs.

Miss Dorothy O'Neal, a missionary nurse to the Congo, will speak at the Calvary Methodist Church in Ridgeley Sunday. Miss O'Neal, a member of the Calvary church before she went into missionary work, will appear at the evening service at 7:30.

She received her BA degree from Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky., a BS degree from University of Maryland and her MA degree in religious education at Scarritt College, Nashville, Tenn. This March she was graduated from the Grace Hospital School of Anesthesia in Detroit, Mich., after 18 months of special training.

Miss O'Neal, an experienced missionary nurse, was sent to the Congo by the Woman's Division of Christian Service of the Methodist Church. She studied one year in Belgium before being stationed at Minga, the Congo, for one year and at Tunda for three years.

She also served a 450-bed leper colony, an orphanage for children of leper patients and eight dispensaries in outlying villages which she visited once each month.

At the present time she is on a speaking tour in behalf of African missions for the W.D.S.C. Late this summer she will return to her duties in the Congo. She probably will be stationed at Wembo Nyama where the Methodist Church is establishing a medical center.

Innkeeper Gets Letters Of Approval

WASHINGTON (AP)—A thousand letters of approval have showered a woman innkeeper who hustled a group of distinguished hikers out of her restaurant because they dripped mud and water on her floor.

The hikers included Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall, and Sen. Paul H. Douglas, D-Ill.

But to Mrs. John T. Reges, the whole bedraggled crew looked like tramps and bums. And she said so—before she realized who they were.

The hikers, after trudging miles through mud and rain, crowded into the Old Angler's Inn in Potomac, Md., two weeks ago.

When Mrs. Reges found the dripping nature-lovers packing the place—many munching home-prepared lunches—she told them: "I run this place to make money not to serve tramps!"

Personally, she said: "You look like a bum, get out!" He got out and so did the rest.

The offbeat incident got nationwide publicity and Mrs. Reges has received reams of laudatory mail, mostly from housewives.

"Good for you!" said a Maine woman. "I am a housekeeper too, and nobody ever behaved that way in my home. If they love nature so much why didn't they unwrap their lunches in a cave?"

Wrote another: "High status and low manners, I would say."

A North Carolina executive wrote: "It's refreshing to hear of someone who speaks their honest piece once in a while, instead of stilted, hypocritical blarney that sound like they were rehearsed for Sunday School."

Mrs. Reges said the incident has sparked business.

"Before, the people came to see the Potomac," she said. "Now they come to see me."

Westernport Boy Killed By Automobile

Wilbur T. Wilt Jr., Two, Fatally Hurt

A two-year-old Westernport boy was killed in that community yesterday afternoon when he was run over by an automobile driven by his grandfather, police said.

Wilbur Thomas Wilt Jr., the only child of Wilbur T. and Velma (Grove) Wilt Sr., of 201 Vine Street, was pronounced dead on arrival at Potomac Valley Hospital in Keyser, W. Va.

Authorities said death was due to a fractured skull and neck the boy sustained in the accident about 3:30 p. m. near his grandfather's home on Miller Street, a dead end dirt road.

The operator of the automobile was Scott Simeon Grove, 53, police said.

The child had been playing with his cousin near the Grove home when the grandfather drove home from work at the Luke mill of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company.

As Grove was backing north on Miller Street the boy ran into the right side of the car and fell under the right front of the vehicle which ran over his shoulder and neck.

Trooper Bruce E. Diehl investigated the fatal accident.

The boy's body was taken to Boal's Funeral Home in Westernport.

W.Va. Rail Holdings $336 Million

Public Utility Value Increases In State

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—West Virginia's public utility property has been valued at about $833.5 million, the State Tax Dept. said Monday.

Tentative valuations, about $18.5 million above final assessments for 1960, were released in advance of two days of Board of Public Works hearings on the matter which open Thursday.

A valuation of $336.8 million on property owned by railroad companies operating in West Virginia was the largest. Electric companies followed at about $209 million and natural gas, oil and pipe line firms at $205 million.

The largest increase over 1960 was $7.3 million for those firms in the natural gas business. There was $4.1 million hike in tentative electric company assessments and $2.7 for the railroads.

Representatives of various utilities will appear before the Board of Public Works to express either their approval or disapproval of these tentative valuations. The board later sets final assessments.

Similar hearings will be held next September on valuations for 1962. The Legislature this year made it mandatory that these taxes be set before the calendar year in which they applied. In forthcoming years, only one hearing will be necessary.

The highest taxpayer, if tentative valuations, stand would be Norfolk & Western Railway Co., whose assessment was placed at $119.5 million, an increase of $2 million over 1960.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Co. was a close second with a tentative valuation of $117.5 million, this was $4 million above 1960 and the largest single increase.

Others increased $1 million or more and their tentative valuations were:

Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., $3 million-144.5 million; Monongahela Powder Co., 2 million-70 million; United Fuel Gas Co., 2 million-61 million; Atlantic Seaboard Corp., 3 million-24 million; Appalachian Power Co., 2 million-112 million; Hope Natural Gas Co., 1 million-57 million and Manufacturers Light & Heat, 1 million-17 million.
